

Dutch Vessel Sinks In Milwaukee Harbor Collision; Crew Saved

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A Dutch cargo ship collided with a barge last night off Milwaukee harbor and sank, but Coast Guardsmen rescued her 29-man crew uninjured.

The 258-foot Prins Willem V, carrying a mixed cargo, plunged nose down into 80 feet of water after the collision with a Sinclair Oil Co. barge being towed by a tug. The tug was undamaged.

Cmdr. Edward Clark of the Marine Inspection Division headed an investigation of the crash, which occurred on a clear night.

There was no immediate explanation of the cause.

Coast Guardsmen said the ship's starboard bow was caved in and the barge's bow was wrecked. The Willem was outbound; the tug and barge were heading into the harbor.

The crash occurred three miles offshore.

A spokesman for the Oranje Line, owners of the Willem, said the ship had been placed in the

Eisenhower Ends 8-Week Vacation; Farm Talk Tonight

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower ends an eight-week work-and-play Colorado vacation today and heads back to Washington via Indianapolis, where tonight he makes a major farm speech the Republicans hope will win them votes.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower, both well rested and reluctant to leave, were scheduled to take off from Lowry Air Force Base at noon (CST) and to arrive in Indianapolis about 4:50 p.m.

Their private plane, the Columbine, is due in Washington shortly after midnight.

Eisenhower's address at Butler University field house in Indianapolis tonight is being billed by the

Merger Of AFL And CIO Nearer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prospects for a long-debated merger of the AFL and CIO appeared brighter than ever as leaders of the two big union groups gathered today in a new effort to heal their 19-year-old split.

Successful negotiation of a "no-raiding" agreement between the rival groups four months ago was heralded as a promising initial move toward amalgamation.

Presidents George Meany of the AFL and Walter Reuther of the CIO brought their top aides together expecting to get down to the contentious job of working out the mechanics of an actual merger.

Despite the expressed optimism, an outright failure in the new merger effort—with so many conflicting personalities among the union chiefs and varying claims of organizing area rights—would surprise nobody. Numerous previous merger efforts all failed.

Meany and Reuther have worked steadily on the idea in the two years since they succeeded to the top union jobs.

Meany told the AFL convention a few weeks ago he looked for fast action in achieving a merger and saw no reason why it should be "talked or conferred to death."

JACKSON (AP)—Two Southern Michigan Prison convicts were captured today within an hour after they overpowered a guard at a prison farm and fled with him as a hostage in his automobile.

The escape failed when the car skidded off a rain-soaked road into a ditch.

The two convicts were Robert Brown, 31, of Detroit, serving 8 months to 5 years for burglary, and Edward Pietras, 35, of Jackson, serving 1½ to 5 years for car theft.

New Prosperity Based On Peace, Ferguson Says

(By The Associated Press)
Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) says the Eisenhower administration will solve the problem of unemployment "through peace, not war."

Ferguson made the statement at a Republican rally at Port Huron Thursday that climaxed a day-long campaign tour of Michigan's Thumb district.

Ferguson also said the St. Lawrence Seaway will make Port Huron one of the seaports of the world and may make Port Huron a part of the metropolitan Detroit area.

Farmers Promised Help
Earlier, Ferguson told Thumb district audiences that he expected early congressional approval of a proposed Saginaw Valley flood control project.

Ferguson said he was "shocked at the sight of unharvested bean and sugar beet crops rotting in the ground." He said federal emergency loans may be asked for flooded-out Thumb area farmers.

"The government can't stop rain," Ferguson said, "but we may be able to help tide farmers over in this emergency."

Ferguson's Democratic opponent, Patrick V. McNamara, and Gov. Williams ended a 1,800-mile plane and motor tour of the Upper Peninsula yesterday with speeches at Escanaba and Manistiquette and "whistle-stop" appearances at towns between the two points.

McNamara called for a Democratic majority in Congress "to free the people from the tyranny of Republican government that is concerned with only one small segment of the people."

Takes the Credit
Williams told audiences that his GOP opponent, Donald S. Leonard, "knows little about the problems or progress of the Upper Peninsula and cares even less."

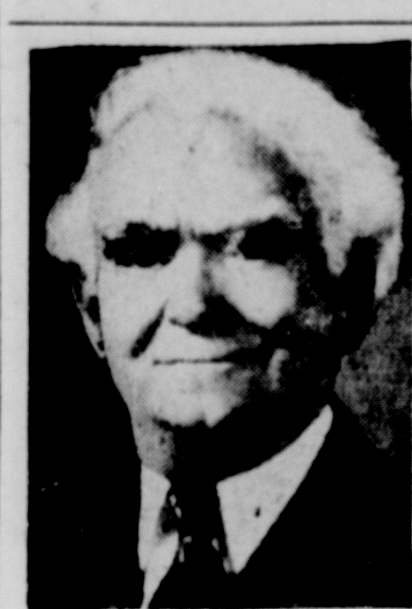

The governor derided the Republican campaign charge that there is a stalemate between executive and Legislature at Lansing. He listed the Mackinac Bridge, reforestation and added state parks as accomplishments of his three terms in office.

Leonard said at Saginaw that state employees would not be allowed to invoke the Fifth Amendment on loyalty questions if he were elected governor.

Earlier he characterized Gov. Williams' "Build Michigan" program as a "build Williams program."

In the six years he has been in Lansing, Williams has attempted to make a whipping boy out of the Republican Legislature and to claim credit for all its accomplishments," Leonard said.

Thursday Night Downpour Kills Marine City Baby

(By The Associated Press)
New downpours that toppled October rainfall records claimed at least one life in Michigan Thursday night.

The rain was blamed for the death of 19-month-old Ronald Bieth of Marine City. The child, riding with his mother, Dorothy, 23, was thrown out when her car went off the road into a drainage ditch in a blinding downpour and a door flew open.

Rain that fell in sheets pushed Detroit's October rainfall count to 6.32 inches—a near all-time record. The October record was set in 1881 at 6.52 inches.

Grand Rapids got 1.52 inches yesterday to set a new 70-year mark with 7.37 inches.

The heavy showers and high winds that struck some sections of the state caused assorted damage.

Four persons aboard a 56-foot auxiliary sailboat escaped possible disaster after the wind broke a boom and ripped a mainsail in a southwest in Lake Michigan.

High winds and rain uprooted trees and downed utility poles in Branch and Calhoun counties in southwestern Michigan.

Four unoccupied house trailers at the Duo Coach Co. at Union City were overturned, causing an estimated $5,000 in damage.

Fallen trees blocked highways and caused traffic jams as sheriffs deputies worked in a torrential rain to clear the roads.

Bean growers in Huron and Sanilac counties estimated the wet weather has caused a $2,000,000 loss to the dry bean crop.

Winter wheat and beet crops also are threatened by the continued heavy rainfall.

Convicts Grab Guard In Jackson Escape; Caught As Car Skids

The escape was made from Waterloo prison farm, 15 miles northeast of Jackson.

Guard David Comer, 40, said the two men came to his office at 1:30 a. m., complaining they were ill. As he was talking with them, he said Pietras suddenly struck him in the face and Brown seized his arms. They then forced him to walk to his car.

With Pietras driving, the car skidded off a dirt road a half mile away.

Arthur L. L. L. L., another guard, had seen Comer and the convicts drive off. While his wife called police, Lamarand drove after the fugitives and found Comer and Brown in the ditch.

Pietras had fled but was picked up by state police two miles south of the camp in a truck he had stolen.

Raft Completes 115-Day Cruise

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP)—Slowed by heavy seas, the Balsa raft, Seven Little Sisters voyaged from Peru today, bobbing along at the end of a towline from welcoming ship Manuetele.

Three hundred islanders jammed an area between the boat dock and the customs shed to welcome the tiny raft and its intrepid skipper, 61-year-old William Willis.

Willis yelled to Dr. D. D. Smith of New York, aboard the Manuetele, "I have no need of medical assistance, everything is fine."

Smith, three Samoans and John P. Mosher of Parsons, Kan., an officer aboard the Manuetele, leaped overboard, swam to the raft and accompanied Willis into the harbor.

Willis, a native Texan who now lives in New York, set out from Peru four months ago with a cat and a parrot as his only companions.

The cat, he said, was in good condition—but she had eaten the parrot two days ago.

Gov. Richard Barrett Lowe of American Samoa planned a welcome banquet and made arrangements for Willis to spend his first night ashore in a newly redecorated guest room, complete with an innerpring mattress the likes of which Willis has probably been dreaming about for weeks.

Willis had planned to drift 11,000 miles in eight months, where-as the trip took less than four.

Beach Homes Torn Apart By Wind And Waves

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Hurricane Hazel, still packing winds of 100 miles an hour smashed its way northward through eastern North Carolina today after wreaking havoc along 120 miles of the Carolinas coastline.

There were no immediate reports of serious casualties among the well-warned residents of the coast. Most of them sought safer quarters. A few minor injuries were reported from falling debris.

May Lose Force
It was moving north at about 27 miles an hour and the weather bureau said it gradually would lose force as it moved over the land across North Carolina, Virginia and into the North Atlantic states.

The tropical storm, which wrought heavy damage and loss of life in Haiti Tuesday, struck the U. S. mainland a severe blow, but towering waves caused more damage along the coast than wind.

The Miami Weather bureau, hurricane forecasting headquarters, reported in a 9 a. m. (CST) advisory that the storm center crossed the coastline a short distance east of Myrtle Beach at 8:15 a. m.

Streets Under Water
"Gale to hurricane force winds and extremely heavy rains will continue especially to the north and east of the center as the hurricane progresses northward across North Carolina and into Virginia during the day," the advisory said.

Thousands of beach homes were torn up and many homes and concession stands washed away.

Far up the coast at Morehead City, N. C., streets were under water and waves lashed at the seawall protecting the hospital. The water was not expected to reach the hospital's ground floor.

The hurricane winds spread across a path as much as 120 miles wide as they struck. An advisory said the forward speed of the storm was 25 to 30 miles an hour and it was expected to pick up speed as it progressed.

Communications and power lines were down in many areas.

Ban On Alabama Lotteries Upheld

By REX THOMAS
PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—Alabama's reinforced lottery law, weathering its first legal attack, stood as a formidable weapon today against accused racketeers still facing trial in Phenix City's vice cleanup.

Special Judge Walter B. Jones upheld constitutionality of the law Thursday and gave a directed verdict in favor of the state against lottery operator Bryant P. Long, who had gambled on a jury trial rather than plead guilty as 10 other defendants have done.

Nineteen similar indictments against the former bootlegger are still to be tried. But state attorneys said they might bypass them temporarily and call the first of 44 cases against the reputed czar of Phenix City's numbers racket, Godwin Davis Sr.

Davis and his son, Godwin Jr., both face 44 lottery indictments, and the elder man's brother, George P. Davis Sr., 50 charges.

Long was fined $175 on the first of his 20 indictments Thursday with a possible 12-month prison term to be added at the discretion of Judge Jones. Under Alabama law the jury could fix only the amount of the fine; the court alone can decide on imprisonment.

Judge Jones withheld his decision.

The lottery law, rewritten by the Legislature in 1951, provides heavier penalties and mandatory imprisonment after the first offense.

Rules Relaxed For Soldiers To Wed German Girls

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP)—The U. S. Army, Navy and Air Force announced today they are scrapping the tough regulations which have hindered but by no means blocked American servicemen from marrying German girls.

Despite the regulations more than 25,000 German girls have become the brides of U. S. servicemen in the postwar years. They are getting married now at the rate of 5,000 a year.

A joint command statement announcing the new move said: "The new change will do much to create better American-German relations and to improve troop morale and welfare."

Two major drawbacks to service's wedding plans will be revised effective Nov. 15:

1. An American need only be on assignment in Germany eight months before he can request permission to marry a German. Previously, 18 months were required.

2. After approval, the marriage can take place immediately. Previously, the marriage had to be delayed until 120 days before the American's rotation back to the United States. This delay lasted years in the case of career soldiers.

Two Fliers Risk Lives To Save $500,000 Airplane

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Air Force officials told the story of two fliers who risked their necks to save their $500,000 F94C Starfire jet and literally "slid home" and kept damage to $300.

Lt. Ward Tuttle, 25, pilot, took off with his radar observer, Lt. Lawrence Bubba, 26, from McClelland Field near Sacramento on a flight to Hamilton Field, near San Rafael.

On the way, their landing gear jammed.

Tuttle radioed ahead and McClelland oiled a 3,500-foot long strip of runway for the landing.

Instead of abandoning the plane by parachute, Tuttle and Bubba cut the engine, brought the plane onto the prepared runway and skidded 2,500 feet to a halt on the oil.

Curb On Chiang Hinted By U.S. Mystery Mission

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Asst. Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson returns today from a mystery mission to Formosa reported to have dealt with limiting Nationalist forays against Communist China.

There was no advance comment from Robertson, the State Department's top Far Eastern affairs official, nor from department spokesmen here on the precise purpose of his sudden trip to confer with Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

There was reason to believe, however, that the United States would like to see fighting between the Communist and Nationalist Chinese kept to an absolute minimum.

Robertson left Washington last Saturday, but his mission was not announced until Monday. The State Department said then he would confer with Chinese government officials "on current and prospective United States aid programs."

Robertson spent little more than a day on Formosa. He saw Chiang three times for a total of about four hours. His surprise decision to fly to Formosa came at the end of last week. Two things which had happened during the week may provide the clue to his decision.

First, it became known in Taipei, the Formosan capital, that Chinese Nationalist air attacks against the Chinese Communists had stopped. They had been undertaken several weeks earlier after the Reds had begun attacking the Nationalist island of Quemoy, just off the mainland.

Second, it was learned in Washington that suggestions had been made by the U. S. government that there appeared to be no purpose in continuing the bombing since the Red bombardment of Quemoy had eased off.

Stage Set For Reds To Seize Indonesia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
Dispatches from Indonesia indicate today a worsening economic-political situation which is bringing the Communist party there ever closer to striking distance of power.

The dispatches tell of skyrocketing prices, of shortages of bread, canned foods, powdered milk and other foodstuffs, of hoarding and of complaints by importers that they are the victims of shake-downs by political parties.

More ominously, the army chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Bambang Sugeng, who has been constantly at odds with the Defense Ministry, apparently is having a difficult time preventing the ministry from arming what may amount to a Communist-controlled militia.

The dangerous elements which have been present in Indonesia's politics ever since it gained sovereignty from the Dutch are coming more and more to the fore. Thus, Gen. Sugeng, apparently on the verge of being forced from his job as chief of staff, has been hard put to prevent the rise of what could amount to a Communist police force.

The Communists long have been campaigning for arms for an organization called Perbepi, those are the initials of a group called

Billions Wasted To Aid Indochina, Observer Claims

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This country pumped 2½ billion dollars into Indochina to help the French save it from communism. Sen. Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat, says it's beginning to look like money down the drain.

Mansfield, a member of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, went to Indochina last year. He has just returned from a second visit.

French Give Up
Last year he said, and so did the Eisenhower administration, that the French, with the help of some Indochinese and American military equipment, could smash the Communist-led Vietnam who had fought the French seven years.

The French and those Indochinese who fought with them against the latter, by Mansfield's estimates, 5 to 3 in manpower and 10 to 1 in armaments, the latter largely American.

But it was the French, not the Vietnamese, who were smashed. The humbled French at Geneva last summer agreed to let the Vietnamese have half of Viet Nam, the largest of Indochina's three states. The other two are Laos and Cambodia.

Looks Shaky
The French are still in southern Viet Nam. But with the Vietnamese in the northern half, and the Vietnamese in the southern half torn by factional disputes and corruption, all Viet Nam looks shaky to Mansfield.

The French held Indochina as a colony for almost 100 years, and they did not prepare the Vietnamese for independence by training them as administrators or soldiers who could run and protect the country if and when it got independent.

Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Vietnamese, cloaked his communism under nationalism, promising the Vietnamese freedom from the French. The French still didn't realize that their day in Indochina was over.

The result: Millions of Vietnamese, fed up with French colonialism, gave their sympathy or active support to the Vietnamese. So the French fought without united Vietnamese backing.

Big Chance Lost
The only way in which the French could have won their war with the Vietnamese, in Mansfield's

Taxpayers' Money Saved By GOP, Says Secretary Of Navy

MOUNT CARROLL, Ill. (AP)—The Eisenhower administration, says Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, has saved taxpayers' money "by being more efficient."

Thomas, addressing a rally sponsored by the Carroll County Republican Woman's Club last night, said the administration was able to cut down expenses in the Department of Defense without cutting strength by streamlining operations.

Thomas praised Defense Secretary Wilson as a "man of integrity," with "great fortitude and ambition, who never begins a project 'without bringing it to a successful close.'"

Stage Set For Reds To Seize Indonesia

"The Union of Former Guerrilla Fighters," whose members took part in the underground war against the Dutch in pre-sovereignty days. It is now a Communist-dominated group and probably Communist controlled.

The proposal to arm this organization — ostensibly to fight the terrorist Dar Ul-Islam (State of Islam) organization, which seeks a totally Moslem state — has been supported for some time now by Defense Minister Iwa Kusumanatri.

But Gen. Sugeng has complained the defense minister was attempting to use the army as a political instrument.

The Communists now support the government. For some time they have been in a position where they could precipitate a crisis if they chose. They have not done so, apparently following international instructions to Communists to pursue parliamentary tactics.

The danger in Indonesia seems to be that the Communists are patiently setting the stage for the time when the signal comes for them to attempt a takeover by "internal" means. The worsening economic situation is to their advantage, and the arming of Perbepi would probably be another step toward their goal.

Quartet Concert Saturday Night

Escanaba Chapter, SPEBSQSA, will present their seventh annual concert of barbershop singing Saturday night with four featured quartets appearing on the show along with the Bay de Noc chorus and a selection of special novelty numbers, instrumental and vocal. The concert will be at the Oliver Memorial Auditorium, starting at 8:15 p. m.

The local chorus of Escanaba and Gladstone men, under the direction of Sam Ham, will present a new group of numbers added to their repertoire. The program will be in two parts, with a finale by all of the song groups.

A special number on the program will be the first appearance here of Debra Christian, diminutive dancer, who will give her own dance interpretations and impersonations.

Members of the barbershop chorus held their regular weekly meeting last night at the Eagles hall and their final rehearsal is tonight at 9 at the auditorium. The traditional 'afterglow' following the concert Saturday night will be at the Eagles hall.

Community Series Program Announced

A new adult education course, "You and Your Community," sponsored by the University of Michigan Extension Service, will be presented in Escanaba on an experimental basis. It was announced today by Robert E. Meyer, program chairman.

Escanaba will be the only Upper Peninsula city to carry the special program designed to aid community leaders in understanding their community and how it operates.

The program will be a "try out" for the Ford Foundation among community groups in different parts of the country. Persons who take the course, which is free, will be asked to fill out questionnaires which will be sent directly to the Ford Foundation and others to the University of Michigan.

The course is planned for eight or nine sessions of two hours each. Materials for the course have been specially prepared by the American Community Project of New York University.

The first meeting is scheduled to be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 20, in Carnegie Public Library.

Gov. Williams Raps GOP Administration

Governor Williams lashed out against the "planless patchwork" thing which he said is typified by the Republican administration in his address at a Delta County Democratic rally at the William Oliver auditorium last evening.

The Republican highway planning came in for considerable criticism by Williams who charged that the Republican highway commissioner has allowed conditions to exist where there are bridges in the state with no roads leading to them and roads leading to the edges of rivers where there are no bridges.

In the 30 minute speech Williams charged that the Republicans stood for big business and have made joblessness mean the same as shiftlessness. He added that Defense Secretary Wilson's dog comments "should be taken seriously since they reflect an undercurrent of deeper thinking and are not just chance remarks."

Williams' speech followed the introduction of the Delta County Democratic candidates who were presented by Wheaton Strom, chairman of the Delta County Democratic party. Strom called on the Democrats to make the coming election a "living memorial to the memory of the late Gerald Cleary."

Patrick V. McNamara, candidate for the U. S. Senate, spoke to the gathering and charged that the Republican administration scuttled the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and replaced it with the ineffective Small Business Administration. He said that the aim of the present administration is to make big business bigger and small business smaller.

McNamara said that the Republicans killed the Point Four program and created many enemies of former allies. He added that the Taft Hartley Act was replaced by worse legislation which is administered by men who are "less than friendly to labor."

The final candidate to present his views was Harold Beaton, who is running for the U. S. House of Representatives. He assailed the voting record of his opponent charging that he had voted wrong 17 out of 18 times. Criticizing the way Victor Knox voted for cuts in appropriations for Veterans Administration Hospitals and rural electrification, Beaton called the laborer, "The forgotten man of the Republican Administration." He also hit at Knox's support of the "Tidelands Oil giveaway," which he said would have given Michigan an estimated $310,800,000.

Mrs. Alfred Gossan opened the rally by singing "The Lord's Prayer." She also sang "God Bless America" and led the group in singing it.

Salvation Army Plays Many Welfare Roles

Many and varied are the helpful welfare and character-building phases of the Salvation Army program for needy people in Delta County, a survey of the Army's activities discloses. The Army is one of six recipient agencies financed by the Delta County Community Chest.

The current campaign began last Monday and will continue until $20,000 has been collected to finance the work of these six agencies throughout 1955. Others receiving help from the Chest are Michigan Children's Aid, Cod Liver Oil Fund, Campfire Girls, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Escanaba's share of the county quota is $12,500. Gladstone must raise $4,500 and the 14 townships will raise $3,000. Successful campaigns have been the rule in Delta County, and leaders this year urge all workers and donors to make sure that the county upholds its fine Community Chest record.

Heavy Social Program

The work of the Salvation Army encompasses providing used clothing to needy persons, meal tickets to transients, lodging, emergency grants, aid to stranded persons, counseling to needy persons, sponsor of youth camps, transportation and a spiritual uplift for persons who are "down and out."

"It is the social work that adds so much to our room needs, building maintenance and operating costs and other needs, and this part of the program is supported by the Community Chest," Lt. J. H. Sullivan, Escanaba corps officer, said this morning.

"The Army gives out 12,000 to 15,000 useful articles of clothing each year to needy families. This clothing is donated by more fortunate people and picked up by the Army, stored in the Army building and orders are received and fulfilled each month.

Aid 50 Families

"About 50 families receive clothing each month. Transients and emergency cases are served as they apply."

"Yes, the Army office is open 24 hours a day to provide both spiritual and material help. Several hundred transients receive meals and clothing all hours of the day and night. The blind, sick, crippled, aged and otherwise troubled are given care steadily."

It is customary, Lieutenant Sullivan pointed out, for the Army to give grocery orders to persons sent by other agencies in emergency cases. Another phase of the Army's work is providing gasoline or carfare to stranded or distressed persons.

"We have a list of articles needed by poor families such as stoves, beds and so forth, and although we do not have room to handle such large items, we often serve as liaison and make arrangements so that needy persons can acquire these items."

Extending Its Work

The Army operates a youth camp in cooperation with the Marinette Army corps where Capt. Louis Thompson, former Escanaba corps officer, is now serving. Many campers are financed by Army funds. In addition, youth meetings are held regularly at the Army headquarters.

At present, Lieutenant Sullivan said, the Escanaba Salvation Army is in the midst of an extensive remodeling and improvement program that will better enable the organization to carry on its very worthwhile work in Delta County. All-season recreation rooms and work shops are being provided for youth groups.

All persons in the county are asked to make a generous Community Chest donation this year so that the work of the Salvation Army and five other agencies can proceed in 1955 without being curtailed in any way.

Chest X-Ray In City Oct. 19-29

The Michigan Department of Health mobile x-ray unit will come to Escanaba starting Tuesday, Oct. 19, and will be located adjacent to the Home Supply store for a period of eight days, offering free chest x-rays in the continuing fight to control tuberculosis.

Dr. William C. Harrison, director of the Delta - Menominee Health District, emphasized the need for everyone to avail themselves of the opportunity for a free annual chest x-ray examination.

"Tuberculosis is an undercover operator," he said. "It sneaks up on you with no warning symptoms. Chest x-ray examination tracks down tuberculosis in its early stages, when it is most quickly cured."

The schedule of the mobile x-ray unit in Escanaba is as follows:

Oct. 19-21 (Tuesday and Thursday)—10 a. m. to 5 p. m.
Oct. 22 (Friday)—noon to 8 p. m.
Oct. 25-26 (Monday and Tuesday)—10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Civic Drama Plays Listed

The Escanaba Lions Club will sponsor the Civic Drama Guild series in Escanaba again this season and three outstanding plays will be presented. Tickets for the series are now on sale.

The plays are "The Fourposter," Nov. 2, "Stalag 17," Nov. 30 and "The Velvet Glove," March 1.

All three plays have scored outstanding hits in Broadway productions.

"The Fourposter" is the only smash hit that was ever presented with only two characters. In the Civic Drama Guild production the roles are played by Herbert Voland and Jean Carlton, both familiar to Escanaba play goers. In private life, Miss Carlton is Mrs. Voland.

"The Fourposter" played from Oct. 1951 to May 1953 in New York and then went on a coast to coast tour.

"Stalag 17" is the thrilling story of a Nazi prisoner of war camp and reflects the experiences of its authors, Donald Bevan and Edmund Trezinski.

The third play, "The Velvet Glove" is a story with a convent school setting.

Tickets for the series are being sold by members of the Escanaba Lions Club and can also be purchased at Gust Asps.

Canadian Rain Hits Escanaba

Two separate disturbances are causing people in many parts of the United States to be huddling under raincoats and umbrellas. Escanaba's rain is due to turbulence in Canada and the rain in the lower peninsula and east to the Atlantic coast is caused by Hurricane Hazel.

This area soaked up an additional .57 of an inch of rain in the past 24 hours bringing the total for the month to over two inches. Marquette was swamped under 1½ inches in the past two days.

More showers will fall on Escanaba today but they will be brief and scattered. Temperatures will remain in the 50 degree range during the day and slip down to 40 at night throughout the peninsula. The drizzles will continue tonight and tomorrow.

One section of Texas was colder than anywhere in the Upper phenson Ave. Loodeen told police that he was tired and was temporarily blinded by the lights of oncoming traffic.

Pravda Stubbed Its Toes In Boasting Of Dolomite Quarry

PRAVDA, the official newspaper of Soviet Russia, has claimed for the Russians the earliest, the greatest and the most of virtually everything under the sun.

But Pravda really stubbed its toe when the Russian newspaper claimed for Russia's Stalin dolomite plant in the Donets basin the title of world's largest.

Employees of Drummond Dolomite, Inc., of Drummond Island in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, reared up in protest at that one. The Drummond Island workers found that the Russians were boasting about a production of three-quarters of a million tons of dolomite in a year which, they said, was about 50 per cent in excess of their goal.

The Drummond workers wrote to Pravda, with a copy to Soviet Premier Malenkov, announcing that the Drummond plant reached the three-quarters of a million ton six years ago. Last year the Michigan company produced over two and a half million tons.

Further, the Drummond workers pointed out, they achieved their production with only 200 workers, compared with 350 workers in the Soviet plant.

The punch line, however, is contained in this paragraph:

"We boys are paid immensely better than your boys. And we have job security. We can quit any time we want to and move on somewhere else. We can own our homes and vote as we please, and worship God as we please—and if we please, Liberty is a great producer of many things, including dolomite."

The dolomite workers have given a well deserved boost to the free enterprise capitalist system in America by making this comparison with things as they are in Soviet Russia.

Russia's economic system is one of rigid controls. A worker goes where he is told and stays there until he is permitted to leave—if ever. There is no economic competition so naturally prices are high and wages are low. The result is a low standard of living.

We get results in this country through a free economy. Workers can work where they want and leave when they want. They can buy where they wish and they can go to any church they desire. Workers are well paid for their labors and this, in turn, makes a vastly expanded market for the things that workers produce.

Competition is keen so prices are lowered. A happy worker is always a more productive worker which explains why 200 Americans can produce three times more dolomite than 350 Russians in the same length of time.

Pravda will never publish the letter from the dolomite workers of America but the letter may discourage the Soviet newspaper from making more of the same mistakes.

Questions and Answers

Q—Has a horse from the English royal family's stable ever been entered in a United States race?

A—The queen is sending her famous colt, Landau, to run in the Washington, D. C., International race on Nov. 3. This will be the first time the royal racing skills of purple, gold and scarlet ever have been seen on an American track.

Q—Is a lion's strength affected by life in captivity?

A—No, lions keep their great strength even in captivity.

Q—What is a Supreme Court quorum?
A—Currently, six justices constitute a quorum.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—If, as reported from Denver, President Eisenhower is planning to appoint this time someone with judicial experience to the vacancy on the Supreme Court of the United States, then Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is the logical choice.

Judge Stephens was the selection recommended for the Supreme Court by the Department of Justice when Homer Cummings was attorney general, but President Roosevelt thought he wasn't liberal enough and appointed a New Dealer. Actually, Judge Stephens, who has now been on the bench here for nearly 20 years, has made a truly great record and is widely respected by the bar of the nation, especially the judiciary. He is neither conservative nor liberal but one of those rare individuals who is intellectually honest and decides cases on their merits.

Judge Stephens happens to be a devout Catholic, and that's another consideration which—while not talked about out loud, because it is rather delicate—is often a factor just the same. President William Howard Taft appointed Edward Douglas White, a Catholic, to be chief justice. Taft was a unitarian and won wide acclaim for his action.

RELIGION IS FACTOR

Since then, presidents have tried, when they could, to take into account that in the highest court in the land all religious faiths should be represented. Justice Butler of Minnesota and Justice Frank Murphy, former governor of Michigan, were the last Catholics to sit on the Supreme Court. When Justice Murphy died, it was generally assumed that President Truman would appoint a Catholic to the vacancy but he was reported at the time to have brushed the suggestion aside with the alleged remark that he felt under no compulsion to take religion into account. It was understood nevertheless that he was impressed with the criticism and actually promised the next vacancy to Howard McGrath, then attorney general, who is a Catholic. No vacancy occurred for that pledge to be fulfilled.

Judge Stephens, moreover, is "geographically right," as the saying goes in politics. There is at present no justice on the Supreme Court from the Rocky Mountain region and Judge Stephens hails from Utah, where he served on the bench before coming to the Department of Justice as an assistant attorney general in 1933. Judge Stephens is an independent Democrat, and that's the group from which Mr. Eisenhower is seeking support nowadays.

If the President feels he must choose a jurist who originally was a Republican, then Chief Judge Orie L. Phillips of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Denver is a natural selection. He is one of the great judges of today and was up for consideration when Chief Justice Warren was appointed.

BROWNELL IS POSSIBILITY

If, however, the President follows another tradition and looks to the Department of Justice, he is expected to give consideration to the appointment of his attorney general, Herbert Brownell. The following men, each of whom was an attorney general, were appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States in the last 40 years:

James McReynolds, appointed by President Wilson in 1914.
Harlan Stone appointed by President Coolidge in 1925.
Frank Murphy appointed by President Roosevelt in 1940.
Robert H. Jackson appointed by President Roosevelt in 1941.
Tom C. Clark appointed by President Truman in 1949.

To this list might be added solicitor general Stanley F. Reed, appointed to the Supreme Court by President Roosevelt in 1938.

The dispatches from Denver saying Attorney General Brownell is "controversial" and hence shouldn't be appointed, reflect neither knowledge of the past nor fairness on the part of those who originated such an objection. For most all men who serve at the head of the Department of Justice become involved in public controversies. The late Justice Jackson, when serving as assistant attorney general, made speeches defending President Roosevelt's plan to "pack" the Supreme Court, yet it was not held against him by the Senate. His appointment to the Supreme Court was confirmed by the Senate on July 7, 1941, without even a record vote.

Just what are the "controversies" that are associated with Mr. Brownell? By order of the President, he had one of his attorneys appear for the department in the segregation case. He also made a speech last year exposing the neglect by the Truman Administration to fire Harry Dexter White after receiving FBI reports pointing plainly to his contacts with the Communists. This speech was deliberately distorted by Trumanites to make it appear that Mr. Brownell attacked the loyalty, rather than the administrative efficiency, of the Democratic president.

Certainly it would be tragic irony if President Eisenhower allowed this episode to block the appointment to the Supreme Court of a man of the integrity and fairness of Herbert Brownell. The attorney general is an able lawyer. His recent speech giving due weight to both sides of the controversy over fifth amendment witnesses was a judicial document of true impartiality.

Tax School Popular; Midnight Oil Burned By Accountants

By BETSY WADE

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Tax men are whirling through a frenzy of night classes, institutes and seminars. They are busy re-educating themselves.

The cause? The new income tax law—a Congressional bill that weighed in at three pounds. It has made their previous tax knowledge as obsolete as the high desk and quill pen.

"I thought the later April 15 deadline would be a boon," one tax man remarked, "but it's nowhere near late enough, when we have to digest the new code."

Another authority indicated the extent of the overhaul in the income tax law by pointing out that the section numbers of the tax law—long a shorthand among tax men—have all been changed save one.

"And that lone familiar section and number out of the 8023," he said wryly, "that's only a coincidence."

There are 3000 technical changes. A spokesman for the American Institute of Accountants sighed: "We have a room full of midnight oil."

Men who make out returns for others — accountants, lawyers, bankers—have all noted a steady increase, since the war, in the number of persons seeking tax return help. They foresee record business this season.

And they must comprehend the provisions of the code before the boggled, the confident, the rich and the just-average start to flood their offices, clutching blank returns and wads of check stubs.

One bright spot seen by tax authorities is that the new law may shake out phony experts who have been operating in barber shops, drug stores and penny arcades. They assume many of these unscrupulous characters will be around selling worthless advice, as they have in the past, but they hope the public won't trust them with the same degree of gullibility as in the past.

Organizations of tax experts are rounding up classes to hasten learning. One such is the Thirtieth Annual Institute on Federal Taxation, to be held at New York University this November.

Henry Sellin, director, can barely bail himself and two assistants out of the tide of applications. He has just emerged from a short evening course in the same thing—435 persons struggled over after work to participate.

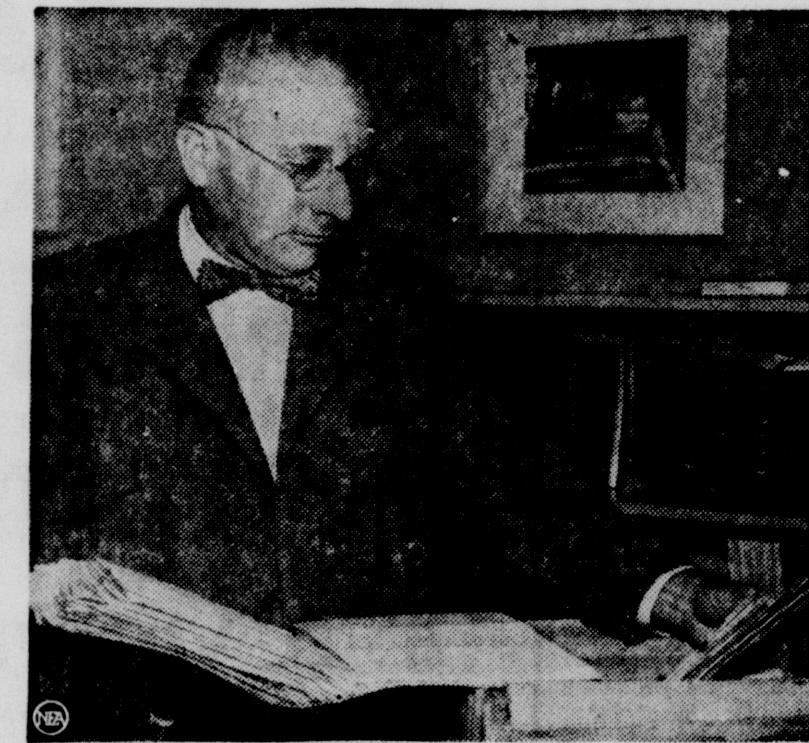

The full quota of 450 students from all over the country was filled on Aug. 15. And still applications flow into Sellin's office.

"One dean wrote urgently requesting that his man be admitted—so that he could teach his course in tax law," Sellin marvelled.

Tax men will also buy the proceedings of the Institute. This book is about the bulk of Who's Who and costs 23.50. In a normal year, 6000 are sold but Sellin shrugs when he thinks about this year's anticipated sale.

At the American Institute of Accountants, the officers are pushing information out to their 24,000 CPA members.

Albert H. Cohen, the assistant to the Committee on Federal Taxation of this organization, said, "We're participating in about a hundred institutes sponsored by all kinds of organizations. They're more popular than give-away programs."

The Institute of Accountants is considering holding a tax institute for a couple of days in a central location. According to Cohen, it will be carried on for as many years as it fills a need, but it was the new law that launched the idea.

The Practising Law Institute, which holds evening classes on this and that, has found its course on Federal Taxation bloated. At every turn in the road when the bill was being enacted, according to Marvin Madeson of the Law

Institute, they held two-day programs which were filled with members and interested persons. One lawyer described these sessions this way. "We're the blind leading the blind."

According to all the authorities in the field, anyone, be he civilian or accountant, can make out a return under the new law, if he reads the code and uses his wits. But it's the reading of the code that makes the going tough. It still weighs three pounds and the explanations, clarifications and discussions don't make it any slimmer.

"Everyone," commented one expert, "wants the code pre-digested for him."

Chinese Army Upsets Ancient Tibetan Ways

WASHINGTON—Strange things are happening in Tibet, the Forbidden Land of central Asia, the Roof of the World.

Tibet's spiritual and temporal rulers, the young Dalai and Panchen Lamas, have made the long journey to Peiping where they have been embraced by China's Red leaders.

Twice Texas Size

Many refugees are red-robed low-robed Buddhist monks Tibet is the homeland of Lamistic Buddhism and Lhasa—seat of the Dalai Lama—is its holy city and the nation's capital. The land has at least 400,000 priests in a population of less than 4 million scattered thinly over an area almost twice the size of Texas.

Almost every village has a lamary. Some house as many as 1,000 celibate monks. Until the infiltration of the Red Chinese, they were free to perform their religious duties and repeat endlessly the mystic prayer of Buddhism, "Om mani padme hum"—Of the jewel in the lotus, Amen.

When the Chinese took over, Tibet was probably the least industrialized and most isolated country on earth. There were no wheeled vehicles—except for one automobile the British had presented to the Dalai Lama. There were no railroads or airfields and there are still none although the Chinese have built a few auto roads from the East, and there is talk of building an airport five miles out of Lhasa.

Export Yak Tails

The land is hemmed in by the Himalayan massif to the south and west, and the rugged Kunlun Range to the north and northeast. The average height above sea level is nearly 15,000 feet. Though the climate is cold and dry, the average Tibetan lives from the land.

Cereals are the main crops. Farming methods and tools are primitive; wooden stakes retnforced with iron serve as plows. Flour made from roasted barley and mixed with yak butter is the food staple. Herds of sheep, goats and yaks are pastured in the high valleys by copper-colored nomads. One of Tibet's few exports to America is yak tails — used for Santa Claus beards.

Refugees at the Indian border report that farmers, herders and tribesmen are becoming increasingly restive under the goad of their new Red Chinese masters. But primitive weapons are almost futile against the modern arms of China.

Moreover, the Tibetans are probably a static or a dying race. The population is decreasing because of the large number of celibate monks and the tendency in lower classes toward polyandry, a marital system in which two or more brothers have the same wife.

Edson In Washington

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—An incredible mistake in the pipe-stock room of the Electric Boat Company in Groton, Conn., could delay the first trials of America's revolutionary atomic submarine, the Nautilus, by six months.

Correcting the results of the mistake involves an extremely complicated inspection and rebuilding job which will add materially to the cost of the sub, previously revealed to be $55,000,000.

The first Navy announcement of the trouble said that a steam pipe had exploded during a pressure test. Then it was explained that welded steel pipe had been accidentally installed in an undetermined portion of the system in place of seamless pipe, which is much stronger.

Here's what happened:

The seamless pipe for the Nautilus, one and one-half inches in outside diameter, was purchased from various sources. And each quantity was rigidly inspected by the Navy before being accepted—but at the place where it was bought.

IT WAS THEN DELIVERED to the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. at Groton where the fatal error was made. The special Nautilus pipe was dumped in the storage bin, or area, where all incoming pipe is placed.

And when it came time to install the steam system in the new A-sub workmen drew what they assumed to be the right seamless pipe from that pile. Instead they took out an undetermined quantity of ordinary welded pipe. Both kinds look exactly alike.

The mistake was not discovered until Sept. 20 when routine pressure tests conducted on the steam system resulted in an explosion of the weaker welded pipe.

After a quick investigation of the trouble the Navy announced that there was no evidence of sabotage. Now the Electric Boat firm says that in connection with the error it has fired its pipe shop foreman, Herman F. Baier, who has been with the company 42 years.

The steam system which was fouled up by the error is part of what is called the secondary system. It's not part of the primary nuclear power plant, which is a separately contained unit.

THE SECONDARY SYSTEM handles the steam which has been created by the heat transferred from the atomic pile unit. This means that the mistake would not have involved the escape of any radioactive materials if it hadn't been discovered until after the first surface tests were started.

If the error had resulted in the sinking of the Nautilus it would have been a major disaster. Not only would the valuable sub have been lost but the low-grade atomic explosion which could have resulted would have created a mass of dangerously radioactive water wherever the accident took place.

The present task involves painstaking testing to determine the exact extent of the trouble. The Navy claims that it's at least a three-month delay. Reports from other sources indicate it could be twice that long.

BECAUSE OF THE limited area inside a sub all of the piping is jammed into a minimum amount of space. This could mean that much more than the steam lines has to be ripped out.

Because the seamless pipe looks exactly like the welded pipe a special method of inspection has to be devised to determine just how extensive the repair job will be. Several weeks after the discovery of the mistake the Navy was still unable to say exactly how many feet of piping was involved.

In spite of the delay and extra expense caused by the error, the Navy insists that it will not effect the eventual seaworthiness of the craft.

An Electric Boat Company spokesman says that it has reorganized its method of handling pipe.

Try And Stop Me By BENNETT CERF

Clifton Fadiman, steering a party of friends to a little Italian restaurant he had praised to the skies, suddenly discovered he had misplaced the proprietor's card. "We'll have to go elsewhere," mourned Fadiman. "I seem to have lost my Spaghettisburg address!"

"This legal hokus-pokus," complained a widow to her closest friend, "is driving me insane. I'm having such trouble getting my hands on the money my husband left me in his will that sometimes I actually wish he hadn't died!"

Biggest piker at the golf club got a chicken bone stuck in his throat, and gasped, "Get a doctor quick!" The doc arrived in the nick of time, and the victim, able to breathe freely once more, asked grumpily, "What are you going to charge me for this?" The doctor suggested "Suppose we say half of what you would gladly have paid when the bone was still stuck in your throat?"

The Doctor Says... Skin Rashes Should Be Watched With Suspicion

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D. — Written for NEA Service

A "working woman" says she wants to know something about skin cancer because she has a rash with a terrible itch on her body and is greatly worried that this may be cancer. By way of reassurance it can be said that this is almost certainly not cancer though that is no reason why the trouble should be neglected.

Cancer of the skin, however, and some of the signs which precede it should be generally known, since early identification and appropriate treatment can certainly save a great deal of trouble.

Any sore on the skin or around the mucous membranes of the lips, near the eyes, or anywhere else which does not heal as quickly as one thinks it should, ought to be watched with suspicion. If the skin has a lump or ulcer by all means let the doctor look at it. Some such sores or lumps will be cancer; they are so easy to treat while they are small and may be so hard after they have grown a while that there is no sense in delay.

THERE are also some skin conditions which may lead eventually to cancer and therefore should be watched even if not treated so that they can be attacked at the first sign of cancerous change. The most important of these are the scaly, brown or black patches which are quite common in elderly people and are usually located on the parts of the skin most exposed to the sun and air. These patches are called keratoses.

KERATOSES are not cancerous when they start though they so often develop in that direction that it is sometimes—but not always—a good idea to remove them.

There are two things which always seem wise, however. One is to watch them because if they grow it may be a danger signal; the other is that persons who show a tendency to develop these patches should try to protect their skin as much as possible from exposure to the sun.

Indeed they are more likely to develop in the first place in people like sailors and farmers who spend a lot of time in bright sunshine.

THE TAKING OF reasonable precautions can save a lot of grief. The patches of keratosis can be cut out or treated by X-rays or the electric needle, if necessary, the choice of method depending on size, location, and most of all on the judgment of the physician.

The actual skin cancers, too, can be treated by surgery, X-ray, or radium or combinations of these. If the patient has not been careless about letting some warning sign run on too long the results from skin cancer are not to be greatly feared.

Stream Survey In Second Year On Ford River

IRON MOUNTAIN — What has happened to the trout fishing on the Ford River?

Old-timers in this area recall the day — not too long ago — when the Ford was regarded as a good trout stream, according to Florin Warren, Crystal Falls, district fisheries supervisor. Now, however, the stream seems to have lost some of its reputation for fishing, although some fairly nice catches still are being taken occasionally from parts of the river.

In an effort to learn more about the stream, the Institute for Fisheries Research has undertaken a survey of the Ford. Tom Stauffer, Marquette, fisheries biologist for the institute, last year began working on the stream which has its headwaters in Dickinson County and empties into Bay de Noc in Delta County, the main stream coursing about 70 miles through those two counties and a portion of Marquette County.

Using an electric shocking device, Stauffer and others working on the project have taken samples of fish life from various parts of the river to get some idea of the stream's aquatic population. The survey continued this year, and about two or three weeks will be devoted to the Ford next summer before the survey is completed.

Comparatively few trout were turned up in the first two years of the project when the water was concentrated in the headwaters area, Stauffer said. Shocking nearer the mouth has yielded some small-mouthed bass.

After the survey has been completed, recommendations on managing the stream for fishing will be made on findings based on such data as fish populations, current measurements, bottom types, water depths, amount of cover, turbidity of water, aquatic plant life, percentage of pools to riffles, degree of flooding, types of banks and temperature surveys.

Depending on the final findings, Stauffer said, the institute may recommend that the stream be managed for trout, that it be managed for bass or — conceivably — that it be managed for both species if it appears feasible to dam the lower part of the Ford for small-mouths, while making other types of improvements upstream for trout.

On the basis of what has been discovered already, it seems that certain changes have occurred in the stream over a period of years, Stauffer remarked. He indicated that it is possible that the stream now gets too low in the summer for favorable conditions for fish and that there doesn't appear to be too much cover in the lower reaches for bass. Temperature may be a limiting factor upstream for trout, Stauffer added.

'Pat Hunting Success Fair On 2 Islands

Two Michigan islands newly opened to ruffed grouse hunting this year have proved fair gunning spots for partridge.

They are Drummond Island in Lake Huron off the eastern tip of the Upper Peninsula and Beaver Island in Lake Michigan about midway between the Upper and Lower Peninsulas.

But on Drummond, long a mecca for sharpshotted grouse hunters, success during the first part of the season was a little below par, although shooting on this species was considered good in most other parts of the Upper Peninsula during the opening days.

Partridge, originally stocked in the south part of Beaver Island, were found scattered over all areas of the island this year.

Weather, boat trouble and other factors held hunting pressure on Beaver to a scant dozen or so persons, natives and visitors. Among the latter were Walter Hagen, the famous golfer, and his party.

10 U. P. Sites Now Open For Fish Spearing

Starting this weekend, 10 waters in five Upper Peninsula counties will be open to spearing of ciscoes, whitefish, suckers and carp.

One of the best spearing sites is Ottawa Lake (also known as Pickerel Lake) in Iron County. Using boats and lights, spear fishermen had good success there last year, according to Conservation Officer Henry Sawaski, Stambaugh. Two other waters, Chicagoan Lake and Sunset Lake, also are open in Iron County.

Other Open Waters
In Dickinson County, three lakes south of Loretto — Hamilton Lake, Lake Louise and Lake Mary — are open.

Other open water are Cisco Lake in Gogebic County, Manistique Lake and Whitefish Lake in Mackinac County and the St. Mary's River in Chippewa County.

The season extends from Oct. 15 to Dec. 31, inclusive, and artificial lights are permitted on the designated waters.

Fisheries workers from downstate and from throughout the Upper Peninsula took part in survey work on the Ford last week. They included, in addition to Stauffer, Dr. G. P. Cooper, Ann Arbor, associate fisheries biologist for the institute; Walter Crowe, Ann Arbor, fisheries biologist, and the following district fisheries supervisors: Warren; Cliff Long, Escanaba; Brad Durling, Baraga; and Lee Anderson, Newberry.

Quick Shots

Food poisoning recently killed 3,000 mink, valued at $60,000, at the Henry Luckert mink ranch in Marinette. The animals were believed to have been infected by a shipment of whale meat. A vaccine flown to Marinette was used in an attempt to save the furbearers.

The cover photograph for Sunday's pictorial (rotogravure) section of the Detroit News will be a scene of Three-Island Lake near Steuben, north of Manistique. The color photograph was taken by Ike Wood, Marquette. Three-Island Lake is considered a good bass fishing spot.

The Conservation Department has halted purchase of red pine cones in the Upper Peninsula. Seeds from the cones will be used at the Wyman Nursery in Manistique and two other state nurseries in the Lower Peninsula during the next five to eight years.

A snow white doe and several smaller deer with white saddles have been seen recently in Mackinac County, according to George Michalka, St. Ignace, president of the Mackinac Conservation Club.

Conservation Department foresters have begun a month-long survey of the forest tent caterpillar problem in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula. They report that the insect pests which have been defoliating portions of Northern Michigan during the past few years are now on the decline and they will attempt to ascertain the extent of their drop and to detect areas where new local outbreaks may be expected next spring. One such buildup was detected in parts of Delta County this year.

A gold wrist watch recently was presented posthumously to Archie MacDonald, veteran Ontonagon conservation officer, by Conservation Department personnel of the Baraga district. The presentation was made to Mrs. MacDonald in recognition of her husband's 28 years of service with the department.

A pair of beginning archers who had no reason to suspect they would achieve a high degree of accuracy did right well recently while hunting out of a camp at Brevoort Lake in Mackinac County. Jack Linsley and Max Schweikert, both of downstate Hopkins, encountered a sizable bear just at dusk. They released several arrows but, in the gathering darkness, were unable to trail their quarry. Returning to the scene the next morning, they found the bear dead — with six arrows bristling from his carcass.

A big and pleasant surprise was in store for sharpshotted grouse hunters in the Seney area during the early part of the season. They bagged about three times as many birds during the first few days this year as they did last season.

CAFETERIA—Numbered signs mark rows of depressions filled with sawdust saturated with chemical solutions used in mineral experiment in Cusino deer enclosures.—(Mining Journal Photo.)

Mineral 'Cafeteria' Set Up In Deer Study Conducted At Cusino

SHINGLETON — A free choice "cafeteria" for deer is being operated here to learn which types of minerals are preferred by white-tails.

Set up in a 40-acre deer enclosure, the cafeteria consists of 196 depressions in the ground arranged in a grid pattern. Each depression is filled with approximately 10 pounds of sawdust saturated with one of 13 chemical solutions.

Arranged At Random
The holes are spaced five feet apart in rows of 14 depressions each. Every row contains 13 types of solution — saturated sawdust, plus a hole with a control sample (plain sawdust). The sawdust deposits are arranged at random, and each row is numbered with signs bearing numerals from 1 through 14.

By checking daily on the amount of sawdust consumed in each of the depressions, biologists at the Cusino Wildlife Experiment Station here hope to discover if the deer show decided preferences for particular minerals. A master chart of the grid pattern indicates which minerals are in solution in each of the sawdust-filled depressions.

Heavy Concentration Of Deer

Twenty-seven deer are confined in the enclosure, regarded as a heavy concentration.

When the experiment, under the direction of Biologist Louis Verme, is completed, game workers should be able to determine whether any given area would make suitable habitat for deer, so far as minerals available are concerned.

Effect On Management

Minerals are available to deer in the soil, in vegetation and in water, and biologists have reason to believe that an area's mineral situation may affect the growth of deer and possibly the reproductive potential of deer in that area. If this is true, results of the Cusino experiment should have an effect on deer herd management.

For instance, if it should be learned through the experiment that cobalt, say, is a highly desirable mineral for deer, but is limited in supply in a particular area, game managers could introduce cobalt in that area, possibly through salt licks.

Detailed Soil Analysis

One of things Verme is trying to discover is which minerals are the most sought after and whether the soil and plants of the Upper Peninsula contain sufficient amounts of these minerals for optimum deer herd conditions. In this connection, the experiment will be tied in with a detailed soil analysis of the area to learn what minerals are available to deer here. On the basis of these findings, deer management recommendations could be made.

There appears to be no question but what minerals play a significant part in animal welfare. Biologist believe, for instance, that elk in the downstate Pigeon River area have gone blind because of lack of a certain element. Moose in some areas of Canada have "gone berserk" because a certain mineral was missing from their diet, and experiments showed that the animals could be cured of their "madness" by exposing them to salt licks containing this mineral. Verme said it is possible that lack of some mineral in the Upper Peninsula may have caused the failure of moose to establish themselves here when they were introduced from Isle Royale several years ago.

Preliminary Studies

Very little experimental work has been done in Michigan on mineral deficiencies as related to the deer herd, Verme stated, adding that he plans to repeat the cafeteria experiment next summer to gain further data on this phase of deer management.

Preliminary mineral studies seem to indicate that the presence of the potassium element may affect the choice of food. The species of vegetation that seem to be most highly preferred by deer also appear to be those with the highest potassium contents. Cutover browse, for example, is believed to have a higher potassium content than old growth.

Chemical compounds being used in the experiment are potassium carbonate, potassium phosphate, sodium bicarbonate, sodium chloride, sodium iodide, sodium phosphate, sodium pyro-phosphate, calcium carbonate, calcium chloride, cobalt sulfate, ferric chloride, ferric ammonium sulfate and magnesium sulfate.

1,453 Michigan Deer Killed On Roads In '53

A total of 1,453 deer were killed by cars in Michigan last year.

Using $100 per car as an average damage figure—a conservative estimate, perhaps—this means a total of $145,300 in damages. In other words, hitting a deer on the highway is a costly matter.

1,500 'Trained' Brook Trout To Be Planted In Lake Near Gwinn

Experimental Release 1st For U. P. Lake

GWINN — The first plantings of trained trout in any Upper Peninsula lake is scheduled to be made in the Swanzy Lake near here next month.

Merle G. Galbraith, Marquette, fisheries biologist for the Institute for Fisheries Research, said 1,500 trained fingerling brook trout from the downstate Oden hatchery are slated to be planted in the lake around the middle of November, along with an equal number of non-trained fingerlings.

Conditioned By Psychologists

The "educated" trout were among those conditioned by psychologists at the Oden hatchery to be wary of humans and other natural enemies approaching from the surface. The psychologists were retained by the state to train the hatchery trout in an attempt to make the fish better able to survive in streams than are ordinary, hatchery-reared trout.

Last May, 1,200 trained trout were planted in the East Branch of the Fox River in Schoolcraft County in the first stream planting of such fish in any Upper Peninsula water. No other planting of trained trout has been reported in the Northern Peninsula since then, although a number of plantings have been made downstate.

Creel Census Planned

The fish to be planted in Swanzy Lake will be fin-clipped so that they may be identified as trained trout when caught by anglers. Plans call for a creel census to be maintained on the lake to determine the general fishing success and to indicate the percentage of trained trout taken. The planting of trained trout is regarded as purely experimental.

EXCELLENT CAMOUFLAGE

The curious insect known as the walking stick looks so much like a twig that it is all but invisible against a tree. Wingless, with thin, sticklike legs, it fools its enemies by merging with the color of its background, whether the green of spring or the brown of autumn.

McFarland Fawn Performs

"Lemme up, will ya!" That's what Joe Holm, 17-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Holm, Marquette, seems to be saying as Suzy the fawn keeps butting the little tyke to the ground in a playful moment. Fawn followed Axel Peterson to his home in the McFarland area when she was a little tyke herself, has been paying daily visits to Peterson ever since.

Archer Fails For Twelfth Straight Year

SAULT STE. MARIE — Twelve fruitless years of hunting deer with bow and arrow have failed to dampen the enthusiasm of an archer from Springfield, Mass.

Walter Whittemore drove 1,060 miles to try his luck on Drummond Island this season and left without getting a shot at a deer. He has had similar luck the past 12 seasons in such places as Vermont, Arkansas and Florida, except that on two occasions he has gotten shots away.

Whittemore's zest for archery began 38 years ago when he won a Boy Scout merit badge for bow and arrow work. "I don't even own a gun," he said, "and I've never hunted deer with one."

Isle Royale Called Ideal For Tourists

Michiganders will do well to try Isle Royale as their 1955 vacation destination, according to an editorial published in the current issue of Motor News.

The editorial points out that the Lake Superior island, a haven for fishermen and lovers of wilderness country, now has a good boat service and that, for the present fiscal year, the park will have almost $180,000 to spend on development, by far the largest sum appropriated to it in a long time.

Smallest Annual Attendance

Since its dedication as a national park in 1946, the island "has been distinguished chiefly for having the smallest attendance of any national park," the editorial states, adding that "this is no reflection on it as a desirable tourist objective."

The relatively generous appropriation and plans for development of the island mean that "things are looking up for Isle Royale, our wilderness giant which lies 45 miles off Keweenaw Peninsula," the editorial asserts.

FOR 'DAINTIE' DAMES

The small cocker spaniel—now a popular pet among suburban and apartment dwellers—was a favorite in Queen Elizabeth's day. In explaining their appeal, Dr. John Cain, 16th century court physician, wrote: "These dogs are little, pretty and fayne, and sought for to satisfy the delicateness of daintie dames."

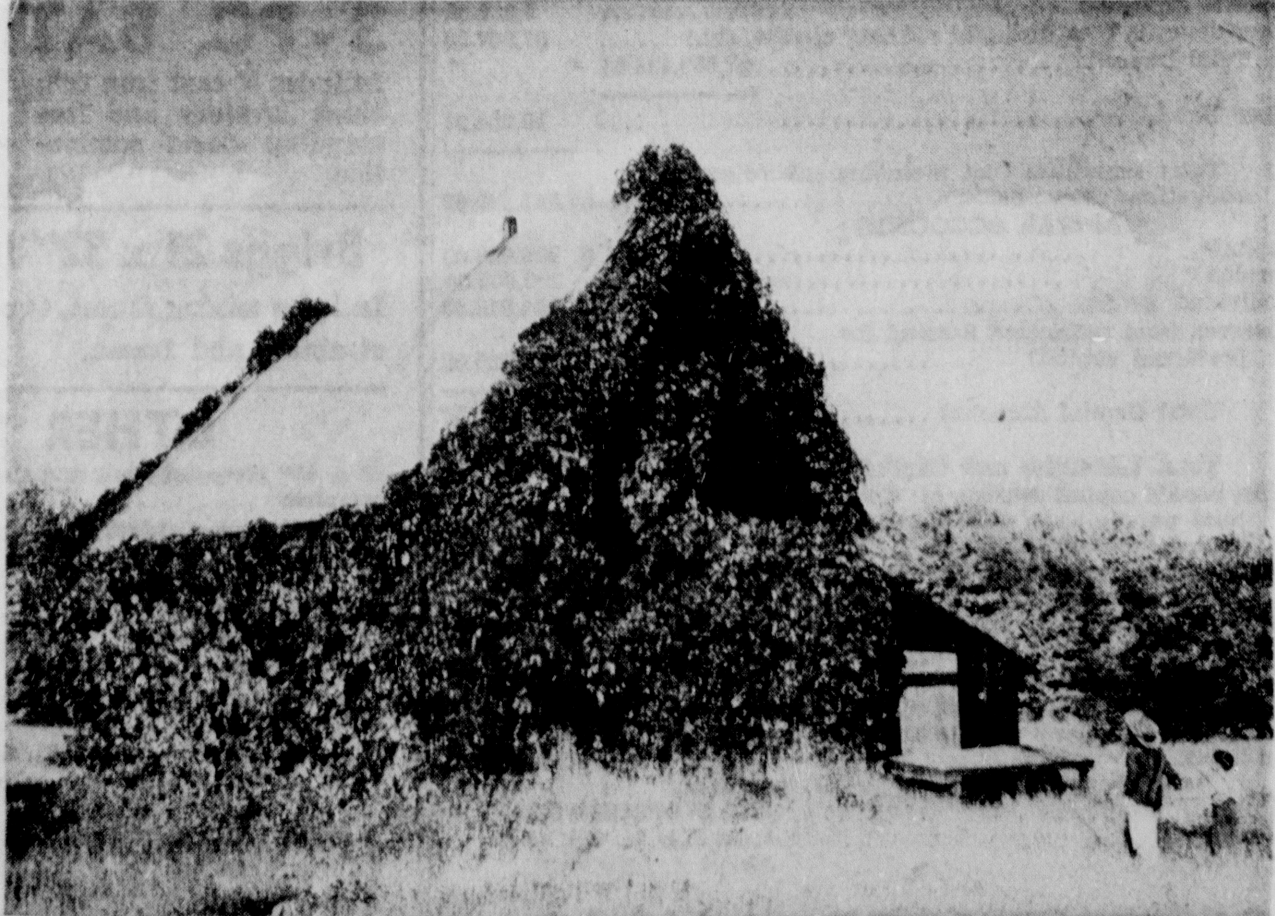

In another moment—this time a confidential one—Suzy whispers sweet nothings into the attentive ear of Mrs. Louis Winters, Marquette.

But what Suzy really came for was a free handout of condensed milk from her old friend, Axel Peterson. He never pens the deer and she never fails to stop in daily for her milk dolo.

Nature Decorates An Exterior

Given a free hand, Nature has thoroughly decorated the exterior of this old homestead in Hia-watha, north of Manistique, by almost completely covering the building with vines. Autumn's gentle touch has turned the vines a brilliant red, creating a striking picture. In recent years, vines which covered the roof of the house were removed to permit new roofing to be applied. Local estimates date the building as a pre-Civil War structure. —(Mining Journal Photo.)

Delta County Potato Show Set For Thursday, Oct. 21

Exhibits Open To Public, Entries Of Growers Asked

By J. L. HEIRMAN
County Agricultural Agent

Remember the Delta County Potato Show next week. We will set the show up on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The exhibits will be judged Thursday morning. The exhibits will be open to the public all day Thursday. Thursday evening, 8:30 p. m., at the Cornell Town Hall, awards will be made followed by a social dance. We hope that all potato growers will participate in the contest this year.

Rats and mice will be moving into buildings from fields and will be looking for food. Installing a few bait stations around buildings may help you control these rodents. Remember rats and mice can do a considerable amount of damage if given a chance to become established in a farmstead.

Another danger to beware is mice and rabbits chewing bark of apple trees. Remove grass from around trunk of trees. A small mesh wire around trunk will also help to keep rodents away.

How good is the watering system for your dairy cows this winter? Cows will drink more water if it is available at all times. It

NW Michigan Is Fast Becoming Big Strawberry Center

TRAVERSE CITY—Northwestern Michigan has the possibility of becoming one of the big strawberry centers of the United States, a Michigan State College horticulturist contends.

H. K. Bell, the extension horticulturist who aids small fruit farmers, points out that the strawberry crop in that area was very good this year—in contrast to other parts of the state.

Several growers reported yields of four to six tons per acre, using the Catskill and Premier varieties. One grower said he had a yield of 10 tons per acre with an unnamed variety he tested.

New growers are getting into the business and established growers are increasing their plantings.

Bell terms northwestern Michigan a "natural" for strawberries. And, he points out, acreage should expand during the next few years.

"Processing plants in the area are clamoring for more strawberries to run their plants at high volume before the cherry season," Bell indicates. And, he points out, there are many excellent sites for growing the berries in soil that is well suited to the crop.

He claims that the quality of the fruit is excellent, "probably surpassing that of most areas in the U. S." The cool nights during the strawberry ripening season is probably the main reason, according to Bell.

Store Fuel Oils Underground Says Farm Expert

Gasoline and kerosene, carelessly handled, are among the top causes of farm fires, says the National Fire Protection Association, sponsor of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 3-9, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and state agricultural extension services.

The safest method of storing gasoline is in an underground tank. Above ground, gasoline and kerosene containers should be located at least 40 feet from buildings. Keep containers in good condition, so that they won't leak. Store in small quantities, use a safety can.

Containers should be clearly labeled.

Liberal Prizes At Spud Show

Upper Peninsula potato growers are expected to turn out in record numbers to show their prize spuds and look over the exhibits of others at the 25th annual Upper Peninsula Potato Show at Escanaba, Nov. 3 and 4.

Delta County agricultural agent Joseph Heirman announces that $900 is being offered for premiums.

For the Silver Anniversary of the event, Heirman reveals, the processing and marketing of potatoes will be featured on the educational program.

William Cargo, extension specialist in farm crops in the Upper Peninsula for Michigan State College, says that eight county potato shows provide the bulk of the entries at the show.

Dates of the county shows have been held or are scheduled: Oct. 16, Marquette; Oct. 18, Chippewa-Mackinac; Oct. 19, Luce; Oct. 20, Gogebic and Dickinson; Oct. 21, Delta and Houghton; Oct. 22, Menominee.

For the Upper Peninsula Show in November the premiums will be awarded in the following classes: Tablestock and certified seed and posters, growing contests in tablestock, seed and 4-H classes, and grading and judging by students in vocational agriculture.

Don't Be Fooled By Remedies To Keep Septic Tanks Clean

Don't be fooled by people who want to sell you "this new method of keeping septic tanks sweet and clean."

That's advice from Walter L. Mallman, a bacteriologist at Michigan State College. He says that many such so-called remedies have appeared on the market from time to time.

The latest is a "highly concentrated mixture of enzymes." It is supposed to replace "lost or worn out bacteria" with new bacterial cultures. It is supposed to speed up the reduction of solid waste matter for easier drainage.

In the first place, says Mallman, the right kind of bacteria are in normal raw sewage. In the second place, he adds, they don't become lost or worn out. They reproduce by dividing themselves.

"I don't know of any substance on the market," he insists, "that will speed up the bacteria in doing their job."

And remember, he adds, a septic tank has to be cleaned once in a while.

Modern methods of first aid no longer recommend rubbing frostbite with snow, which may cause permanent injury to tissue. Nor do doctors recommend pouring strong iodine solution into open wounds. Antiseptics don't have to sting to be effective.

Candidates For Potato Queen Are Solicited

Home demonstration groups in Delta County are again sponsoring the Delta County Potato Queen Contest. Each group has been invited to submit the name of one contestant, a girl who is between 16 and 21 years of age and lives on a farm.

All of the contestants will meet on Monday evening, Oct. 18. Three Home Demonstration group members will act as judges. The queen will be selected at that time but no announcement will be made until October 21 at the evening program of the Delta County Potato Show, Cornell.

Recommends Use Of Rye For Winter Cover Crop

The use of rye, as an overwinter cover crop, is starting to take hold in the Delta County Soil Conservation District. "As one travels around the county he can spot this protective green covering on fields which used to be left open during the winter to the mercy of wind and water erosion," reports Irwin Ten Haken of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. "Some farmers have used this practice for years but the majority using it now have just begun to realize the benefits of this soil conserving practice", he added.

There is more to the use of rye as a cover crop than just the protection it gives against erosion. A cover crop serves to prevent the leaching of plant nutrients which would otherwise be lost by going into solution and washing off the field or down into the soil beyond the root depth of crops as corn or small grains. The leaching problem is most severe on the sandier soils. Organic matter is also added to the soil when the cover crop is turned under the following spring.

Still another use an overwinter cover crop of rye gives is that of late fall and early spring pasture. "Many of the dairy farmers in the area can well use this extra amount of succulent pasture, especially during the month of September when the legume pastures should be given a rest to store food for next spring's growth," Ten Haken added.

It would appear that an excellent place in the rotation for this practice would be following summer following on a field that will be in potatoes or a row crop the following year. Rye could be seeded before August 15 and some fall and spring pasturing could be obtained. Then in the spring when growth is from 4 to 6 inches it can be turned under as a green manure crop. Potatoes following a green rye crop turned under seem to have some added protection against scab. It is believed this is due to the organic breakdown of the rye in the soil.

Some of the members of the Delta County Soil Conservation District using cover crops this fall are Frank Barron, Flat Rock; Jerry Van Damme, St. Nicholas; Clayton Ford, John Marcella Jr., Joe Steff, all of Cornell; Casimir Wojakowski, and Urbanc Bros, of Bark River.

Michigan ranks 17th among states for corn acreage. At the same time it ranks 10th in amount produced, according to 1953 figures from the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The Argyle Hotel was closed and locked. Jim pounded on the glass-paneled front door. He could make out the dim figure of Toby Argyle sitting alone at a back table. Toby looked around, made a vague gesture of dismissal. He got up when Dunn kept up his racket.

Toby opened the door a crack and apparently came to the conclusion that since he had gone so far he might as well go farther. He swung the door wide, said, "Come on in then. We're closed up though." He walked the full length of the building and sat down again at his chosen table.

Jim shut and relocked the door, followed. He sat down at the little table. "I'm very sorry about your daughter, Mr. Argyle."

That had the desired effect, penetrated the whisky haze for a moment. "Sorry. So you know. That's right. I remember now. Aggie phoned and said you knew. Said you might be along to see me. I'm to cooperate. Mrs. Oswald said so. What you want?"

"A couple of things," Jim said. "First, did you deliver any pitch wood to the Carlson place recently?"

"Never did," Toby said. "Tried to once or twice. Old Mrs. Oswald she wouldn't have any pitch around. Wanted nothing but dry pine and maybe a little heavy aspen. Says pitch is too dirty."

"About your daughter," Jim said quickly. "Tell me, did you or your wife ever hear her a doll?"

"Two fat tears rolled down Toby's face. 'We never gave her anything. Except away. That's it. We didn't have her long enough, and we didn't have anything anyway. No, all we gave Angelica was away.'"

Agnes could have given the daughter a doll without Toby's knowing. But Argyle had been insistent there was no gift.

Jim turned that thought over in his mind as he drove through the sagging wings of the wrecked gate.

He wondered what his hurry was, decided he had better give up the practice of automatic driving, particularly on mountain roads. It wasn't like him to drive so fast, even though he had been thinking of other things.

It came to him suddenly that there was an increasing tension, an unrational, yet insistent demand for speed.

He gave in to it, (drove as fast as he dared. He zoomed past the fork in the road, rushed across the last of the level ground and skidded into the first turn of the road down to the Carlson Castle. He slammed gears into low, used both acceleration and the steady power of compression to negotiate the hairpin turns.

His tired sled and left marks as he slammed on the brakes at last in the Carlson driveway. Puma Lake rippled in the faint wind which preceded the daily thunderstorm. Philip and Mrs. Hilton sat on one corner of the glassed-in patio sipping from tall glasses. Agnes Argyle walked out to greet him.

Marauding Dogs Kill 14 Mink

That it is a violation of Ordinance 223 to allow a dog to run at large and there are definite penalties for conviction is pointed out by Orrie Switzer, Delta County dog warden.

One section of the ordinance reads: "It shall be unlawful and shall constitute a nuisance for any dog to suffer or permit any dog to run at large in any street, square, alley and ways or any other public place in the City of Gladstone, when not within immediate custody or control of any person."

Switzer pointed out that on Monday of this week two dogs running at large killed 14 valuable mink at the mink farm of Art Erickson on M-35 south of Escanaba. Switzer was called, determined the owners of the dogs, and destroyed the two dogs. Owners of the marauding dogs have agreed to pay Erickson for the loss sustained.

Penalties for violation of the Gladstone dog ordinance include fines of not more than $10 or jail terms of not more than 10 days or both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Four-Lane Road Needed For Straits Bridge, Governor Declares

Progress in reforestation, hospital construction and promotion of facilities for the tourist industry, and the Mackinac bridge, were cited here Thursday by Gov. G. Mennen Williams as evidences that state government under him has not "stagnated."

The governor came from Alger County, accompanied by Patrick V. McNamara, candidate for U. S. Senator, and was the principal speaker at a noon luncheon for about 250 in the Elks Temple. He also spoke at the high school, on the importance of education and the need for professionally trained persons in various fields, and toured business and industry here.

Williams noted in his speech here that traffic experts have agreed that a 4-lane highway is necessary to the Straits bridge, and pointed out that Charles M. Ziegler, state highway commissioner, has stated it will "take 30 years" to build it.

126,000 Acres Reforested

"We can't wait that long," the governor declared. He added that the "descendants of Paul Bunyan" must have courage and faith "to meet the future halfway."

Charging that his political opponent has been spreading "a fictitious story of a stalemate," the Democratic candidate observed that Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital was achieved by the people of the community "with the guidance and help of the state office of Hospital Survey and Construction."

The governor also pointed out that the Wyman nursery was put back in operation, after it was abandoned by the federal government, by the state conservation department, on his recommendation. The nursery, he said, has been a source of millions of pine and spruce seedlings for the state's "huge" reforestation program.

Tourist Promotion

Economic benefits will flow from the reforestation program the governor stated, for the future of the lumber industry is thus assured and the tourist industry aided.

The governor noted that there was a stalemate for awhile in support of state parks, because "the Republican majority in the Legislature refused to appropriate on an adequate basis for the upkeep of the parks." But the stalemate was broken this year, he said, and the Legislature, "at my request," made more than $775,000 available for park improvement. During the past five years, Williams said, 77 million people from Michigan and other states have visited state parks.

Two hundred new public fishing sites have been acquired in the last five years, Williams stated, and a 100,000 acres of public hunting and recreation lands have been added to the public domain.

"Proposed Republican taxes on tourist cabins, tourist homes, hotels and motels have been blocked," Williams said, and "an attempted raid by Republican tax writers on the Conservation fish and game fund was blocked by a veto."

Minimum Wage

"When the history of these giveaways is written, the amount will be so vast it 'will make the Teapot Dome look like a drop in the bucket,' the candidate declared. To say hundreds of billions of dollars is 'putting it low,' McNamara added.

The senatorial candidate also charged the GOP "is not talking about the issues," but is saying it is "against Communism, corruption, and sin." Most people are against these, McNamara observed.

John W. Kelly, of Manistique, introduced the guest speakers and Fr. F. M. Scheringer gave the invocation and benediction. Democratic candidates were present for the meeting, as well as Harold Beaton, Congressional candidate; Edward Gibbs, candidate for state senator; and Gilbert Wales, candidate for state representative.

Deficit Of $12,000 Is Anticipated By Schools

A deficit ranging from $12,000 to $15,000 is anticipated this year by Manistique Public Schools, Supt. A. F. Hall reports. Total income is expected to be $217,539, he said.

THOSE IN UNIFORM

Marine Pvt. Omer L. Doran, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Doran of Germfask, Mich., is scheduled to finish four weeks of individual combat training about Nov. 1 at the Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton, Calif. The training is given to Marines scheduled for duty overseas and to all graduates of recruit training before they are assigned to new duty stations.

and expenditures $229,382. The schools' revenue will consist of $169,940 from the primary interest fund, sales tax diversion and state aid; $29,615 from local property taxes; $2,984 from library fines; and $15,000 from tuition the superintendent reports.

Unforeseen heating and plumbing costs will be about $1,000 higher than the $1,500 budgeted for this year, Supt. Hall said, and salary costs are higher. A budget deficit of $10,000 was anticipated last year by Manistique schools, but was averted when a surplus distribution of money was received from the state, the superintendent pointed out. Thus the schools ended the 1953-54 year with a balance of $1,583.

Supt. Hall reports he has been informed that there will be no distribution of surplus funds by the state this year.

Enrollment in schools here has increased from 1137 last year to 1155 this year, and accordingly the schools' receipts from the state this year are higher than last year, the superintendent stated.

Eskymos Face Hurt Mountaineer Team Here Saturday Afternoon

The Iron Mountain Mountaineers will be forced to send a juggled lineup against the Escanaba Eskymos here tomorrow afternoon when the teams clash at 2:30.

While losing to Menominee 7-0 last week the Mountaineers, under new coach Moon Molinari, also lost the services of two regular linemen and may have lost their ace back, Ron Steiner.

Ed Bartolameoli and Ray Jacques, both tackles, suffered injuries which will keep them out of action the remainder of the season. Steiner played last week with a broken finger and his hand is in a cast this week. No decision has been made as to whether he will play here tomorrow.

2-3 Record

Iron Mountain, one of the toughest of Escanaba's foes year in and year out, opened the 1954 season with a pair of victories but since has lost three straight to Norway, Stambaugh and Menominee.

Coach Joe Milokna's Eskymos have been cracking through tough scrimmage sessions this week and a lot of time was spent Wednesday on practice place kicking. Bob Bero was on the ball with fullback Dave Viaw doing the booting.

The Eskymos have come out on the short end of five straight decisions this season although they have played well enough to win at least three of the games. The Eskymos lost by one-touchdown margins to Ironwood, Soo and Menominee and dropped a one-point verdict, 19-18, to Kingsford last Saturday.

Face Top Teams

An indication of the rugged competition the Eskymos face each week can be seen in the current list of Upper Peninsula teams in the weekly football poll conducted by the Upper Peninsula Sports Writers Association.

Basilio Meets Michigan Champ

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — Carmen Basilio, the No. 1 welterweight contender, and hopeful Allie Gronik of Detroit slug it out tonight for a crack at the winner of the Kid Gavilan-Johnny Saxton title match.

About 5,000 fans are expected for the nationally televised (NBC) 10-round scrap at the War Memorial Auditorium.

Basilio has been itching for many months for another chance at Gavilan, who took the Canastota boy here in September, 1953, on a split decision in a title go.

If Gronik, 24-year-old Michigan welterweight champ, should take Basilio, he would be in line for a title match with the Gavilan-Saxton winner.

Basilio, who whipped Carmine Fiore Sept. 10 in his last outing, has won 42 — scoring knockouts in 19 — lost 11 and drawn 6.

Philadelphia's Shift Becomes More Confused

By TOM BRADSHAW

PHILADELPHIA — Abner Doubleday and the U.S. Supreme Court notwithstanding, a simple sport never could become as confusing as the current situation involving the Philadelphia Athletics' franchise.

Abner invented what he considered a reasonably uncomplicated game and the Supreme Court ruled that major league baseball isn't big business in the full meaning of the term.

But the future of the A's today the club's executive vice president, was a giant puzzle with Roy Mack, holding the key.

Roy had until 10 a. m., CST, next Monday to make up his mind, once and for all, whether he was (1) ready to sell the Athletics to Chicago real estate dealer Arnold Johnson or (2) prepared to produce enough capital to keep the club in Philadelphia.

Mack reportedly was scurrying in every possible direction seeking prospective "angels," but he hadn't come up—publicly at least—with anyone ready to sink funds in the proposition he has to offer, one that includes retention of Roy himself in the A's ownership.

Three Philadelphia syndicates have been dickering with Roy in the past few days, one headed by John P. Crisconi, retired automobile

Ameche Big Gun As Badgers Duel Purdue

By WILL GRIMSLEY

(By The Associated Press)

The line-splitting rushes of Alan (The Horse) Ameche will be matched with the deadly pitching arm of Lenny Dawson Saturday when Wisconsin and Purdue clash at LaFayette, Ind., in the battle of second and fifth ranked football powers.

The game between the two unbeaten Big Ten teams — Purdue was tied by Duke last week — features a pressurized schedule which will have the attention of Bowl and All America selectors.

Behind Ameche's powerful running, Wisconsin has swept through its first three games without a defeat. Dawson pitched Purdue to victory over Missouri and Notre Dame before being shackled last week in a 13-13 tie with Duke. Wisconsin is a seven-point favorite.

Duke Meets Army

Duke, also unbeaten and possessing what may be the strongest team in all Dixie, will have its own hands full at Durham, N.C., where it meets a swift-hitting Army team which has scored one-sided victories over Michigan and Dartmouth.

The parlor quarterback will have to wait until the late afternoon

Escanaba Hawks Plan All-Star Hockey Tilt In Marquette Dec. 4

The Escanaba Hawks, defending champion of the Northern Michigan-Ontario Hockey League, will battle an all-star aggregation composed of the five leading players from each of the following hockey hotbeds, Marquette, Calumet and Houghton-Hancock, in the annual league all-star game in Marquette Saturday night, Dec. 4.

This announcement was made this morning by officials of the Escanaba Hockey Association after receiving word from Leonard G. McKie, Marquette parks superintendent, that the Marquette Palestra would be available Saturday, Dec. 4.

Four Unbeaten Big Ten Teams Play Key Games

CHICAGO — The Big Ten's four undefeated teams — Ohio State, Wisconsin, Minnesota and one-tied Purdue — will be in the thick of conference action Saturday in what could be key games of the title chase.

Ohio State, the only team with as many as two league triumphs, will try to make once-defeated Iowa No. 3. The Buckeyes have trimmed Indiana, California and Illinois. Iowa's only loss, after downing Michigan State and romping over Montana, was by 14-13 to Michigan last week.

The game is at Columbus, Ohio, and the oddsmakers have made Ohio State a seven-point choice.

Badgers No. 2

Another scorcher sends Purdue to Wisconsin. The Badgers have jumped up to the No. 2 ranking nationally after triumphs over Marquette, Michigan State and Rice.

Wolverines Hurt At Right Halfback Spot

ANN ARBOR — Michigan coach Bennie Oosterbaan today was looking over this third string prospect at right halfback to play against Northwestern Saturday.

Injuries forced him to cut his No. 1 and 2 men at the position, Tony Branoff and Ed Hickey, from the 38-man travelling squad. Center John Peckham also stayed home.

The team leaves from Willow Run Airport for Chicago this afternoon. Oosterbaan said he hoped to get in a workout at Dyche Stadium in suburban Evanston before the game.

Two More Big League Managers On Hotseat

By BEN PHLEGAR

(By The Associated Press)

The major league managerial merry-go-round is spinning at the fastest clip in history with a chance that two more baseball bosses may be taken for a ride in the near future.

Since the 1953 World Series, 10 of the 16 clubs have changed managers, two of them twice.

The latest switch came suddenly in Philadelphia yesterday where the Phillies named Mayo Smith, a greying stranger from the New York Yankees minor league farm system, to replace Terry Moore. Moore had been around only since July 15, when he took over from Steve O'Neill.

Reds Started It

Cincinnati started the dizzy whirl a year ago in September by picking Birdie Tebbets to succeed Rogers Hornsby. Then came Eddie Joost for Jimmy Dykes on the Philadelphia Athletics. Dykes for Marty Marion at Baltimore and Walt Alston for Charlie Dressen at Brooklyn.

Action lulled until late March, when the Chicago Cubs replaced Phil Cavarretta with Stan Hack. O'Neill was fired in mid-July. Baltimore lured Paul Richards away from the Chicago White Sox in

Unrated Crystal Falls Is Dangerous Foe For Central

The Catholic Central High School football team faces an Iron County foe Saturday afternoon that is probably the underrated team in the Peninsula this season.

Opening kickoff for the game at Crystal Falls will be at 2 (EST).

Coach Tom St. Germain will send his Central squad, crippled by injuries, against a veteran-studded Crystal Falls crew that has won four games against a lone loss to Houghton.

Coach Wally Hirsch of Crystal has 10 regulars back from last year's team that won four and lost three.

Heading the vets is halfback Max Woelffer, who has piled up 65 points thus far this season. Woelffer is a 185-pound senior. Big man in the line is senior Dick Takala, 200-pound tackle who is highly regarded by Menominee Range grid observers.

Woelffer's 65 points make him the fifth highest scorer in the Upper Peninsula. The big halfback scored five of his touchdowns in one game; top single-game output this season in the U. P.

Other veterans who will face Central Saturday afternoon are Sam Karnack at quarterback, John Tessaro at halfback with Woelffer, John Ozoga at fullback, John Von Zellen and Alex Slivensky at ends, Joe Torreano at tackle, Herb McGuire at center and John Reid at guard.

Supplementing these veterans are a number of other first-line lettermen who are seeing considerable action. They are Tom Eltingboe, Mel Ropiak and Stan James.

The lone loss on the Crystal Falls record this season came at the hands of pass-happy Houghton. The Gremlins filled the air with passes to defeat Crystal 27-13. Wins came over Bark River, Norway and L'Anse.

Orzel To Start

Catholic Central will enter the game with a shuffled lineup as the result of injuries suffered in the past two weeks. Bob Orzel, sophomore guard, has been moved into the left tackle position left vacant by the injury of Allan Villeneuve last week.

Other Central starters will be John Vadrnais and Joe Juettan at end, Leroy Villeneuve at the other tackle, Isadore Derkos and Mike Venne at guard, Arnold Henriksen at center, John Berrigan at quarterback, Bill Lancour and Bob Rodman at halfbacks and Jim Greenwood at fullback.

Central is ranked seventh in the Upper Peninsula's list of top teams with a record of three wins in five starts.

Card Pitchers Lead In Gopher Ball Department

NEW YORK — The sixth-place St. Louis Cardinals can trace a good portion of their national league pitching woes during the 1954 season to "gopher-ball" tendencies.

Eddie Stanky's hurlers displayed their generosity in the art of "grooving" by yielding 170 home runs, tops in both circuits in that department. In 1953 the Cards' moundmen were solved for only 139 homers as St. Louis tied for fourth in the standings.

Three of the Redbirds — Harvey Haddix, Vic Raschi and Gerry Staley — were guilty of giving up 20 or more homers. Haddix allowed 26, Raschi 24 and Staley 21, according to figures compiled by the Associated Press.

Cincinnati Next

The Cincinnati Redlegs' pitching staff finished right on the heels of the Cards with 169 home runs allowed, followed by Brooklyn with 164. The Philadelphia Athletics' pitchers had 141 homers hit off them to top the American League. Baltimore hurlers were the most selfish in the majors, permitting but 78, one less than given up by Washington.

Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phils and Detroit's Steve Gromek were the individual "gopher-ball" leaders for the first time in their major league careers. Roberts grooved 35 round-trippers to National League batsmen, while Gromek paced the American League with 26.

Garcia Toughest

Roberts, the hard-working right-hander, experienced the most difficulty with the Cardinals, who tagged him for nine homers. Gil Hodges of the Dodgers was his individual nemesis with three.

The former Michigan State bonus baby served up 14 homers to left-handed batters and 21 to right-handed swingers. He won 23 and lost 15 while working 337 innings.

A first inning leadoff home run by Cincinnati's Bobby Adams cost Roberts a no-hitter on the night of May 13 as he proceeded to retire the next 27 men to face him.

Cleveland's Mike Garcia was the toughest pitcher for home run hitters to solve, giving up but six homers in 259 innings.

Wind Demolishes Michigan School

(By The Associated Press)
High winds demolished a Michigan school house only moments after the teacher had left it Thursday. They also unroofed a farm home and blew down a tool shed, but no one was injured.

Flint, where a roaring twister killed 116 on June 8, 1933, got a tornado scare and elsewhere over night rains, whipped by strong winds, toppled October rainfall records and claimed at least one life.

The demolished school was in Washington township of Gratiot County, 10 miles southeast of Ithaca. Its 21 pupils had left earlier, but Mrs. Dorothy Lehner, the teacher, had stayed behind to grade test papers.

She said the winds struck the school just after she had dashed through a pouring rain to her car. Debris broke the car's rear window.

Jumping from the school building across a road to the farm of Eddie Drummond, the storm took the roof off the house and leveled a nearby tool shed.

The Beecher district, on Flint's outskirts, got its twister scare about 6 p. m. It was through this district that the 1933 killer did its worst.

Television antennas were knocked off roof tops by the high winds, a utility pole was blown down and a home breezeway was moved two feet off its foundation. A tool shed roof at Beecher High School, heavily damaged by last year's twister, collapsed.

Mink Still Dying At Luckert Ranch; Loss Over $100,000

MARINETTE—Mink are still dying at the Henry Luckert farm on Shore Drive more than a week after the ranch was stricken with the loss of 3,000 mink within 24 hours.

Luckert said 3,350 mink have died since last Tuesday leaving 650 as of Thursday. A shipment of tainted food is blamed by Luckert for the fatal illness. Veterinarians and mink ranchers from several parts of Wisconsin assisted in a mass injection of antitoxin to help save some of his herd.

A few recovered but Luckert is confronted with heavy loss in breeding stock and pelts which he estimated at in excess of $100,000. Extensive tests of the food are being made.

Plans to assist the Luckerts are expected to be discussed at a meeting of the United Mink Ranchers Association next Thursday in Milwaukee.

Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market swayed irregularly under successive buying and selling flurries today and presented a mixed picture in the early afternoon.

The range of change was around two points in either direction, although some moved outside those limits.

Trading was quite brisk but at a rate below that of Thursday's total of 2,540,000 shares when the market suffered one of the heavier setbacks of the year.

The break brought in a flood of overnight buying and selling orders that hit the tape with full force at the opening today. Within a short time after the opening bell, the tape fell behind in reporting actual floor transactions. That lasted, however, only momentarily.

Within the first hour, buying support was uncovered and the market advanced. That advantage failed to hold, however, and prices sagged.

Railroads were firm throughout. Steels did well. There were good plus signs in the radio-televisions and airlines. Oils had a weak tendency along with chemicals. Otherwise the market was mixed.

The market had some good news at the beginning of the day in the fine earnings of American Telephone, General Electric and Continental Can.

U. S. government issues in the over the counter market were steady.

AN OUT-OF-POSITION DECISION
When a bidding situation involves a pure question of judgment, no great blame can fairly be attached to whatever decision is made. But there are cases in which any decision is out of order—and the following hand presents a typical illustration.

South dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
♠ A J 9 7 3
♥ A J 10 6 5
♦ K
♣ J 4 2
♠ K Q 10
♦ A 8 7 3
♣ A 9 8 3
♥ 8 2
♦ J 10 9
♣ K 7 5
♠ 8 2
♥ A K Q 9 7 3
♣ Q 10 6

This was the bidding in a rubber game at a leading New York bridge club:

South West North East
1♥ Double 4♥ 5♠
5♥ Double Red 6♠
Pass Pass

West opened the king of spades, and South could not avoid the loss of a spade, a diamond and two clubs, for a penalty of 600 points.

Some readers will probably attribute this outcome to the lightness of South's one-heart opening; others will question North's redouble of five hearts, pointing out that North was not particularly blessed with high cards. But both of these observations skirt the true essence of the recorded bidding, which was South's inexcusable action-taking in a position that demanded a pass.

The reference, of course, is to South's bid of five hearts over East's five diamonds. South later admitted that he had made the bid as a sacrifice—that in view of North's preemptive raise indicating little defensive strength, and South's own meager defensive values, it had seemed certain that the opponents could make their contract.

There was not a grain of merit in this argument, because the hard fact was that South was not in the "saving position." North occupied that role, not only because he was the "last to speak for his side," but because of the special nature of his preemptive raise. One of two things had to be true: North had either leaped to four hearts on solid offensive-defensive material, in which case five diamonds could be doubled and punished; or North, having voluntarily raised hearts to the four-level, would certainly not hesitate to save against five diamonds if that sacrifice seemed advisable.

The sum and substance were that North had the right to reach South's five-heart bid as a show of strength, not weakness—hence North's redouble.

Defects Delay Atom Submarine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The same kind of defective piping that has delayed for at least three months the first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, has been spotted in the land-based model for a second atomic sub.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday night that the faulty piping is being removed from the model under construction near Schenectady, but said the trouble will not put the project "seriously behind schedule."

The Nautilus, at Groton, Conn., was on the verge of trial runs Sept. 18 when a section of its high pressure steam piping burst under test.

The Navy found some of the 1 1/2-inch steamline contained welded instead of the seamless tubing called for in specifications.

The Navy discounted any possibility of sabotage in the Nautilus explosion, and there was no hint of any deliberate wrongdoing in the AEC announcement Wednesday night.

In neither case did the defective tubing harm the nuclear part of the plant, AEC officials said.

Houghton May Quit 4-County Health Department

HOUGHTON—As a result of a request by the Ontonagon County unit of the Copper Country District Health Department that Houghton County increase its share in the 1935 budget from $15,000 to $37,000, a temporary crisis has developed, resulting in a threatened breaking up of the four-county organization, which embraces Houghton, Ontonagon, Baraga and Keweenaw counties.

This was the effect of action by the Houghton County Board of Supervisors at a special meeting Tuesday to withdraw membership from the four-county organization in the event the financial burden becomes too heavy to bear.

This action came to a head after being discussed for some time when Ontonagon County submitted a budget which would increase Houghton County's share to $37,000, an increase of $22,000.

According to a member of the county board, Houghton County will undoubtedly continue in support of the health department in its own area, as in the past, regardless of any action taken by the Ontonagon County Board.

Motorist Fined For Intoxicated Driving

Patrick O'Connor, 36, of 601 N. 19th St., yesterday pleaded guilty in Justice Henry Ranguette's court to a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants and was ordered to pay a fine of $50 and costs of $5. The court suspended $25 of the $50 fine.

O'Connor's driving license was suspended, as required under state statute.

Escanaba police arrested O'Connor after his car collided with an auto driven by Mrs. Warren Stanchina, 27, of Escanaba, on Aug. 30 on S. 23rd St. Mrs. Stanchina suffered minor injuries and her two-year-old son, Danny, sustained lacerations of the face and head requiring 64 stitches to close.

The Stanchina car was pushed 65 feet by the impact. Witnesses estimated O'Connor was driving 60 miles an hour, according to the police report.
